"History of Confederate Soldiers from Amite County 1861-1865"

by George A. McGehee.

Compiled by Lt. Col. Powell A. Casey, Miss Frances Powell Otken and Dr. Albert S. Casey.
As published in pages 242-260 in Vol III of Casey's History of Amite County Mississippi.

CONFEDERATE RECORDS FROM COURTHOUSE, LIBERTY, MISSISSIPPI

The Liberty Guards and Amite Rifles offered their services to the State of Mississippi in April, 1861, but as no call had been made for any companies and the battle of Bull Run had been fought and won, many of the boys thought the war would soon be over and the Amite County troops would not have any part in it. In April, 1861, Capt. Nix called a meeting of his company and reorganized a company for three years, or the war, on July 25, 1861. This company left Liberty and was carried in buggies, wagons and carriages to Magnolia from whence the company was carried by railroad to Iuka, Mississippi where the Company went into camp about one mile west of Iuka on July 27, 1861. The company consisted of 88 men and officers at that time.

On August 13, 1861 Col. Posey mustered in the company with the Black Hawk Rifles into the Confederate Army for three years or for the war. The company was drilled and performed all the duties of soldiers until September 15, 1861, when Capt. Nix of the Liberty Guards and Capt. T. B. Reid of the Black Hawk Rifles were ordered to Memphis where they joined Col. Bonham's Regiment, known as the 22nd Regiment of Mississippi Volunteers, the 3rd Confederate Regiment enlisting for the war. The 22nd Miss. Regiment consisted of ten companies, the Liberty Guards being numbered as Company E and the Black Hawk Rifles as Company G. After a short while, spent in camp on the Race Track at Memphis, Col. Bonhom was ordered to Columbus, Kentucky, where the regiment had not unloaded from the cars when ordered to Fulton Station, Kentucky, where the regiment was drilled and cleared land. Sometime after October 1861, the Long Roll was beaten and the regiment fell into line and was rushed by railroad to Maysville, Kentucky, to stop a raid on Paducah, Kentucky, but as Col. Bonham had no orders, the regiment returned to Camp Beauregard six miles north of Fulton where Gen. Bowen assumed command and we went into winter quarters with the building of log huts. On Christmas Day, Dec. 25 1861, the command was ordered to State Line Station, Gen. Bowens command going by rail to Bowling Green, Kentucky. On February 6, 1862 the camp moved south to Nashville because Fort Henry and Ft. Donaldson had fallen.

At Shiloh, Co. B was halted in the road and fired upon by Prentices Yankees and suffered terrible losses. They went into battle with 88 men and had 33 killed and wounded in this, their first baptism of fire. H. B. Mackie and John Tebaw were killed on April 7, 1862.

LIBERTY GUARDS
22nd MISSISSIPPI REGIMENT

The Liberty Guards were organized April 1861, left Liberty on July 25, 1861, as an independent volunteer Company for the war, proceeding to Iuka, Mississippi; mustered into Confederate service August 13, 1861, and attached to 22nd Mississippi Regiment and given place of Company E in said regiment.
